

Utilize 120% of the vegetable's life. In those parts you think of as trash resides the endless potential for life.

Eating them is also important! Radish leaves are also an important source of vitamins!

Now that you mention it...

Endless potential huh...

Isn't this looking like a small power spot?

Maybe it's just my imagination, but...

Cultivate them in water?

Wait, you're not going to throw that away, are you?

You just don't get it... it's about seeing the everyday growth of the vegetables!

But that takes time... and the amount harvestable isn't much...

Experiencing the process brings meaning to cultivating your own vegetables.

This is the essence of cultivation! It's not just about eating!
